CEMENT PLANT TO BE ENLARGED

Present Plant Inadequate to Supply Demand for Its Product

WILL DOUBLE OUTPUT

Daily Output Is Now 375
Barrels of Best Portland Cement

Amongst the many manufacturing plants of Blairmore, the Rocky Mountain Cement Works take one of the foremost places. Although only yet in its infancy, this commercial enterprise has a good record which speaks very much for those who are managing its affairs.

Late last fall the wheels of this industry revolved for the first time and ever since then its product has been eagerly sought after by those who would use high grade cement.

So good is the cement manufactured by the Rocky Mountain Cement Works and such entire satisfaction is being got from the use of it that the demand is far greater than the output. While in an interview with the assistant manager, H. M. Budd, a representative of the ENTERPRISE was told that orders for their product were increasing every day and if their output were thirty-five hundred barrels they would be able to supply the present demand.

The Rocky Mountain Cement Works are adding more machinery to their plant at Blairmore and are installing another tube mill which is used for grinding the rock. This will enable them to keep up with the roaster and increase their output. During the coming winter the plant will be increased to twice the present size. This will mean a large expenditure of money and when completed will enable them to more than double the present output and will make the Rocky Mountain Cement Works one of the largest producers of Portland cement in Canada.

An aerial tramway is being constructed by the company for the purpose of conveying the shale from the mountain side to the plant. This will be completed in about a month's time and will mean a big saving in the transportation of shale. For these and other improvements, the company is just now spending several thousand dollars. They have at present seventy men employed and their daily output is three hundred and seventy-five barrels of best Portland cement.

J. Conmee, M.P.,
At Blairmore

James Conmee, M. P., of Port Arthur, was in town on Friday last the guest of W. A. Beebe. Besides being a member of parliament, Mr. Conmee is railroad builder and has figured very prominently in the building of the Canadian Pacific Railroad. Mr. Conmee has the charter for building a new railroad called the Central Pacific, with head office at Port Arthur, which railroad is to be built through the immense coal properties of the North Kootenay Pass. Mr. Conmee left in the evening for Pincher Creek to hold a conference with Mr. Taylor of the Pincher Creek, Cardston & Montana railway, and Mr. Adams of the Carbin Hill railway.

The big new tippie at the West Canadian Collieries' mines here is now being used and giving entire satisfaction.

North Kootenay Pass to Have Railroads to Con- nect Vast Coal Properties

The North Kootenay Pass is receiving a great deal of attention just now from many railroad magnates and during the past few days representatives of the Pincher Creek, Cardston & Montana, Carbin Hill, and the Central Pacific railway companies have been visiting these parts and with a view of connecting by railroad the vast coal properties of the North Kootenay Pass. The following companies own extensive coal properties along the Pass: Premier Coal & Coke Co., Head Syndicate, Coal Securities Co., West Canadian Collieries, Carbin Hill, North Kootenay Pass Coal Co., while Madden, Morris & Marshall also own a large tract of valuable coal property there. All this land is heavily timbered, and all the timber required in and around a coal mine can be easily got from off the property.

The Premier Coal & Coke Co. has four workable seams which vary in thickness from seven to fifteen feet and run four miles from North to South while all the other coal properties there have about the same quantity of coal.

Extensive beds of fire clay have also been discovered on the property owned by the Premier Coal & Coke Co. and an analysis of this clay gave the following results:

Moisture	11.76
Alumina	60.92
Iron Oxide	2.73
Alumina	20.92
Lime	1.36
Magnesia	1.50
Alkalies	.71

Laymen's Banquet

The Laymen's missionary banquet held in Coleman, last Wednesday evening, in the miners hall, was an unqualified success. It came up to the highest expectations of those who were behind the movement. Representatives from all the Pass churches met in committee a number of times at the Institutional church at the call of Rev. Murray. Plans were carefully laid, and the splendid banquet of the 14th inst. was the result.

Shortly after the arrival of the evening train from the east, which brought the speakers and laymen from the other towns, one hundred and twenty-five sat down to the tables loaded with the good things which the ladies of the Pass bountifully provided.

J. W. Gresham, of Frank, chairman of the committee, was also chairman for the evening. Rev. J. F. Hunter, of Blairmore was called to ask the blessing of God for His meritorious.

When all had partaken to their hearty content, chairman Gresham arose and in a clear, crisp, pithy speech introduced the subject of consideration for the evening mission.

O. D. Austin, of the Lethbridge Herald, was the first speaker introduced, who enlightened the audience in regard to the rise and progress of the Laymen's missionary movement.

Rev. M. Wright of Lethbridge was then called upon to speak, who emphasized the ordination of the laity as well as the clergy, and their respective duties in making Christ known to men. He also laid stress upon awakening power of this great movement.

WATER WORKS CONTRACT LET

Council Decides in Favor of Blairmore Man--
Decision Popular

AWARDED TO W. J. BUDD

Work Will Commence Immediately--To Cost
About $35,000

At a meeting of the Blairmore council held in the Beebe building on Tuesday afternoon, for the matter of letting the contract for the laying of water works for the town of Blairmore, there were two applications to be considered. The tenders were Broley & Martin, of Fernie, B. C., and W. J. Budd, manager of the Rocky Mountain Cement Works.

After due consideration the contract was let to W. J. Budd. Mr. Budd's price for completing the water works was in the neighborhood of $35,000. His price was a little higher than the Fernie firm, but seeing that Mr. Budd is a Blairmore citizen, heavy tax payer besides being a successful business man and one who takes a deep interest in everything which pertains to the upbuilding of Blairmore, we are with the many who think that the Blairmore council acted wisely in awarding the contract to Mr. Budd.

Mr. Budd is at present on the Pacific coast but will arrive here early next week when work on the Blairmore water works will be commenced, and everything rushed on as to have it completed before the cold weather sets in.

Salmon Bellies Still World Champions

New Westminster's lacrosse team, on Saturday, defended the Minto Cup at Queen's Park, at the Royal City, winning out against the National of Montreal in a score of seven goals to three. Over twelve thousand spectators witnessed the game, which was the most interesting lacrosse game ever held in Western Canada. The New Westminster maintained their laurels in a most admirable manner and still hold the Minto Cup as well as the championship honors of all the world.

Work on Depot Resumed

Work on the erection of the big Canadian Pacific railway depot, in Blairmore, which was suspended about three weeks ago on account of some of our townfolk wanting it to be erected about a block farther east, has been resumed. Petitions and counter petitions were forwarded to the railway commissioners which met at Lethbridge on Thursday last who decided without a moment's hesitation that the new building be erected near the old one.

The Temperance and Moral Reform league has petitioned the provincial government to increase the minimum fine for those selling intoxicating liquors without a license, from $50 to $150. This would result in less shebeening.

Frank Greco's new brick building was formally opened on Saturday evening last when a pleasant time was spent by many of our citizens in stepping the light fantastic upon the floor of this new building until the clock told them that Sunday had dawned upon them. This building is situated opposite the Vancouver building across the railway track and Frank intends to sell or rent it to some enterprising business person.

Forest Fires—A Remedy

The annual ravages of forest fires in the West are appalling and although we are not so unfortunate as some of our southern friends in the destruction of human life by those fires, yet our annual mortality caused by those fires to say nothing of the hundreds of miles of heavily timbered land devastated by those conflagrations is enough to send shivers to our inmost souls.

We believe that what the Scientific American said in a recent issue in regard to preventing these fires from doing such destructive work, is prompted by good sound judgment and if practiced in this part of Canada would tend greatly towards diminishing the annual forest fires' work.

It is said in part: "In casting about for remedial or preventive measures, by which the progress of these fires can be arrested and confined within limited areas, the most feasible method would seem to be that of provision of fire-avenues, of the same general character as those which are doing such good service in the forest covered sections of Europe. Under existing condition it would seem that the most effective way to safeguard our forests would be to cut through them a network of fire-avenues. Following the European practice of making the width of the clearing twice the height of the tallest timber through which it is cut. In Europe the avenues in some forests will be found at intervals of half a mile; here they could be opened at intervals of from two to five miles, according to the configuration and value of the forest lands. The cost of the work, it were judiciously laid out and properly executed, might be covered largely, and in some localities altogether, by the sale of the timber."

Editorial Notes

The opening up of the immense coal fields in the North Kootenay Pass will add fame to Southern Alberta as a great producer of black diamonds.

Three Newfoundland weekly newspapers have recently come out for church work. One is devoted to the cause of the Salvation Army, while the others are devoting most of their space to the work of the Roman Catholic church.

Give some persons in your employ a promotion and they would have people believe that they own the business, and they act as if they were little gods almighty. We must admit, of course that there are some exceptions of this.

Editorial Notes

Sir Robert Bond did for Sir Edward Morris what John the Baptist did for our Saviour—he prepared the way. To Sir Robert, who is without doubt one of the greatest statesmen in the East, belongs most of the credit for the satisfactory settlement to Newfoundland of the fisheries dispute. Sir Robert Bond prepared the way and made it quite easy for his successor.

The Laymen's committee met on Monday evening at Coleman, and report a financial success. The report of the finance committee will be printed in another issue.

Coleman Notes

Principal Cruickshanks was in Blairmore on Sunday.

Cheap drinks and blind piggery were the last items on Coleman's bill.

Dr. Bruce, of McLeod, is practicing dentistry here this week.

Quite a number of Coleman people attended the dance given in Frank on Tuesday evening and all report having a good time.

J. W. Gresham, J. P., of Frank, was administering justice to shebeens in Coleman, on Monday last.

Coleman is noted these days as a place where cheap drinks may be had and where blind pigs run amuck.

Colemanites are desirous that Blairmore's popular barrister, T. Eds, should take up practice of his profession in Coleman.

It is currently rumored that a popular hotel man of Blairmore is shortly to enter in the hotel business in Coleman.

The business men here are preparing to publicly celebrate the occasion of incorporating Coleman into a town.

Several capitalists have turned their attention to Oatville, and it is understood that a mammoth tooth-pick factory will be erected on that property. There is sufficient underbrush in that vicinity to supply all the Pass with tooth-diggers.

Election excitement is running high and many are aspiring to municipal honors. Wm Evans, who is one of the most popular men in Coleman and one who is always interested in Coleman's welfare, is the first to publicly announce that he is a candidate for the new council.

Your correspondent does not believe in election of councillors by acclamation. Let good business men be our first town councillors. If a man cannot make a success of his own business, he is not qualified to take part in the business affairs of a town. The new council will probably consist of: Alex Cameron, Mayor. Wm. Evans, F. G. Graham, J. O. C. Macdonald, E. Holmes, F. W. Davies and Harry Smith.

Laymen's Banquet

Mr. H. Ballantyne, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Calgary, and a delegate to the great national meetings held in Toronto and Chicago, gave many potent reasons why the Laymen should be interested in sending the Gospel to the ends of the earth, and especially English speaking people who are now doing the bulk of missionary work among the nations of the world. He stated strongly the beneficial character of a missionary and his work in heathen lands which was irrefutable.

Mr. Humphries, of the post office Calgary was the last speaker. He gave the statistical setting of missionary work of today. The great need of more men and money to prosecute the greatest work of modern times.

Thirteen thousand missionaries are now sent from this continent. Sixty thousand are needed at once and instead of 19 million dollars, 80 millions are needed to evangelize the world in this generation. He gave a strong appeal to men to do their part to wipe the world for Christ.

The speeches were all of high order and the audience frequently showed its appreciation while the speakers were addressing them. A hearty vote of thanks was given to the speakers which was responded to by Rev. Murrel Wright. Alex. Cameron moved a resolution endorsing the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and this was seconded by E. Holmes. The ladies were not forgotten and a vote of thanks was joyously granted to them.

Music was rendered in the intervals of the Banquet by the orchestra. The committee wishes to thank them for their services. They wish also especially to express their thanks to the ladies of the Pass towns who so prominently provided and aided at the Banquet and consequently so materially assisted in making it a success.

Rev. Dr. J. H. Riddel Speaks at Frank

Rev. Dr. J. H. Riddel, principal of Alberta college, Edmonton, delivered two eloquent addresses at the Methodist church, Frank, on Sunday last. Large attendances greeted the Doctor. A reception service was held in the evening when thirty-six were admitted into the church by letter and on profession of faith.

In the evening principal Riddel spoke along the lines of Education. Dr. Riddel said, was as essential for a person's spiritual and mental growth as religion. Both work together. Education is important, and he was glad to be able to say that this matter was receiving considerable attention by the people in this part of the country. No nation can be permanently great that neglects religion and no nation can be permanently great that neglects education, and as Phoenicia, Egypt, and other ancient places which said that merchandise was of more importance than men, fell and sunk into oblivion, so shall we sink into oblivion, and forgetfulness if we value merchandise more than men. We should endeavour to carry out in this country what John Knox succeeded so well in doing in many parts of Scotland. He saw that nearly every parish had a church and besides each church was a school. Education is the thing which sharpens the instrument for our life work. Our mind is that instrument. Those who say that the time used in putting the instrument in shape is lost, make a fatal mistake. The speaker said that we should think more. God bless the public schools that are training the boys and girls to think and God bless the public school teacher. He considered that the most important person in a community was the public school teacher. In conclusion he urged upon the parents to give their boys and girls a chance, especially the girls—"the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." The speaker said that he would not turn over his hand once just for the purpose of making a Methodist but he would turn it over thousands of times to make a man.

Frank Notes

William Jones, of the Blairmore Tooth & Nail Factory, was in town on Saturday night last, talking real estate.

Over a mile of sidewalks have been built in Frank this year, and the general street improvement is a credit to the town.

J. Wheeler has secured the contract for completing the interior of Mark Drum's residence on Blomwood Ranch, and work will begin at once.

Foundations were laid during the week for seven new cottages and rumor has it that ere the setting in of winter over twenty new residences will be erected.

The Frank hotel barber was arrested on Saturday, on the charge of being an accomplice in a recent train robbery. He was taken to Macleod forthwith to stand preliminary hearing on the charge preferred.

At Knox Church on Sunday next Rev. F. S. McColl will deliver his farewell address to his parishioners. Special music will be rendered and at the night service the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Drum have returned from a two month's trip to the Pacific coast. During their sojourn they visited Vancouver, Seattle, Portland and many others of the large western Canadian and American cities, and report having all round a most enjoyable trip, and found particularly pleasant their stay down by the sea.

On Tuesday evening last a group of the most successful business men of this season. The Goyette building was very tastefully decorated for the occasion which proved the most enjoyable affair ever held by the club, being attended by about one hundred couples. Large numbers came in from all surrounding towns. Dancing was kept up until the wee hours of Wednesday morning.

A banquet and concert, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of Knox Methodist Church and in honor of the Rev. F. S. McColl, will take place in the Goyette building to-night. Supper and refreshments will be served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock after which addresses will be given by the following: Revs. T. M. Murray and W. MacMorine, of Coleman, J. E. Rogers, Bellevue; J. F. Hunter, Blairmore, and J. Moore, of Hillcrest. During his two month's sojourn in Frank, Mr. McColl has won the sympathy and good will of people of all classes, and all regret his departure from this mission. Mr. McColl will leave next week to resume his studies in the Alberta College at Edmonton.

Passburg Notes

Several financiers have visited Passburg during the week and have been acquiring a portion of the property surrounding Riddell's Lake. This is a real beauty spot and the location and surroundings make it one of the most desirable residential sites in the Pass, and one which should command a big price, and Mr. Riddell has decided to put one all section on the market, and has surveyors already at work.

A GOOD POSITION can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or "Railway" telegraphy. Since the 3-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $80 per month, with good chances of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of E. R. and Wireless Officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Davenport, Ia., Cincinnati, O., Portland Ore., or Memphis, Tenn.

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Ch. M. Leblain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. So bid by dealers everywhere.

BOWSER HITS IT.

A Journey to the Beach to Find a Bungalow.

SIGNBOARDS ON THE SAND.

The House Without Roof or Floor and One on the Side—Awakening Arouses His Wrath—He Returns Home to Hang Pictures.

By M. QUAD.
[Copyright, 1916, by Associated Literary Press.]

MR. BOWSER had been reading the evening paper and smoking a cigar for half an hour when he looked up and said:

"Mrs. Bowser, I have found it."

"A new sort of dying machine?" she queried.

"No, ma'am. I propose to put in two months at the seashore this summer. During the last week I have been making quiet inquiries, and I have struck the place to go to."

"That is fine."

"I want a bungalow. We want that bungalow to command a view of the ocean. We want that ocean to shimmer and ripple and foam. We want pleasing environments. We want to be away from the madding crowd. In fact, we want a spot where we can be near to nature and lead the simple life for a couple of months."

"I am afraid it will be hard to find," she sighed.

"As I said, I have found it already. I am going down to Silver Beach in the morning to look the thing over, but haven't the least doubt of being perfectly satisfied. The gentleman who owns the bungalow happened to be in the office today. He is a millionaire."

He and his family passed last summer there, but owing to his wife's health they must go to Europe this season. When he found out that I was Bowser he offered me the place for such a trifle that I was anxious to take it. It's fifteen miles out, and there are twenty trains a day."

"HE MET MOSQUITOES ON THE WAY."

"You know how often you have been disappointed in finding a place."

"But I have always dealt with scrub people. In this case it is a millionaire. He wouldn't have a bungalow if it was not right up to the handle. He said the owner driving from there and sea regarded as solid as him and eggs; that he gained five pounds a week right along. Oh, we've struck it this time. I'll slip out there tomorrow and make sure of the bargain, and the first of the month we'll be ready to go. Think of it, Mrs. Bowser—the shimmering Atlantic ocean right at our door for two long months!"

"But I shouldn't depend too much on the shimmer."

"I'm not going to. It can shimmer, shiver, roll, foam, roar or blow, but it will be there just the same. That's the fun of it—it can't get away. It's got to stay right there. And we can go around bird-proof and hunt for shells—king, wharf, dunes—as we like. It'll be great, Mrs. Bowser, simply great!"

All the rest of the evening he talked about shimmering seas and bungalows and the simple life, and when he went to bed he dreamed that he was a sailor and cried out in his sleep:

"Ship ahoy! Is that the Hickey Ann of Gloucester?"

A Start For the Beach.

Mr. Bowser was up at daylight. He snatched a hasty breakfast and was off. He didn't propose to let anybody get ahead of him on that bungalow. His anxiety and complacency as he boarded a train would have aroused jealousy in the breast of an old sitting hen. It continued for ten miles. Then he had a word to say to the conductor and was answered:

"Your ticket is for Silver Beach, but you'll have to go to Brass Beach, which is two miles farther, and walk back."

"But why will I?"

"Because you took the wrong train. Yes, there are twenty trains a day, but sixteen of them are gravel trains. You should have taken one of them."

"That's a nice bur-de-do."

"Add more are Silver Beach, Brass Beach, Iron Beach, Lead Beach, Nickel Beach and Copper Beach. If you don't like Silver Beach you won't have to go home now."

"Why in thunder wasn't I told I'd have to walk two miles?" shouted Mr. Bowser.

"Because we never discussed the patrons on this road. If you were going to Copper Beach you would have to walk five miles."

"In you know anything about Silver Beach?"

On the Trail.

"Oh, yes. A silver deposit came ashore there about twenty years ago, and that gave it its name."

Mr. Bowser's throat sank. At the same time his heart sank his gorge rose. If he was fooled on Silver Beach and the shimmering Atlantic ocean some one should die. His walk of two miles on the tide didn't bring back the shovels he started out with. It was a hot day, and the mosquitoes bit, and he met no one on whom he could commit murder. He was in a dangerous place when he came and asked the signboard directing him to turn to the right to reach Silver Beach. He turned, and after crossing a marsh and three creeks on planks the beach lay before him. No old shimmering Atlantic ocean. No old shimmering Atlantic ocean. No old shimmering Atlantic ocean.

But another structure of some sort. As he plowed his way and asked a fisherman came to meet him. He was a jovial fisherman. He called to Mr. Bowser to put his beam bar asternward and clear up his topails, but his jollity was short-lived. The seaker after shimmering and bungalows came to a halt and sturnly demanded:

"Is this Silver Beach?"

"Is there a bungalow here to rent for the summer?"

"Right over there, sir."

Mr. Bowser walked over. It was a square pen made of rough boards, having a thatched roof of seaweed.

"You make a roof of canvas," explained the man, "and you can have a parquetry floor or any other kind you want. Seashell windows and plenty of cracks to let the ocean air in. She sits day and night. You and your family can board with me. Claims every man!"

"And you call this a bungalow?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he jumped up and down in his tracks.

"It isn't a bungalow just this minute, but will be just as soon as you move in. Shall you bring down your automobile? You don't have to have beautiful the music sounds down here on moonlight nights, when it seems as if there was a silver pathway clear across the Atlantic. No, it's not a bungalow now; it's only the 'bung' part. The 'alow' will come later. My stars, what ails the man?"

Mr. Bowser was jumping up and down and flinging his arms about and acting like a man fighting bumblebees.

"Maybe you've hit the ocean on an empty stomach," suggested the fisherman in sympathetic tones.

Bowser's Wrath Breaks Out.

Then the Johnstown flood broke loose again. For the space of ten minutes Mr. Bowser handed out the English language as he saw it when a man kicks an April fool hat. The snipe flew away in terror; the Atlantic ocean recoiled ten feet; the clams for half a mile along the coast went down into the mud. When he had only one minute left he used it to say to the poor man in front of him:

"Get ready! Say your prayers! I am going to hammer the life out of you!"

"You feel that way, do you?" was asked.

"I feel—oh, how I feel! Man, man, I'll have blood for this!"

"I don't blame you. You came down here to find a bungalow, and you find nothing but the bung part. Of course you're disappointed. Of course you must have blood."

"Certainly, certainly. That's what I am here for—to shed my blood. I will lie down here on the sand and you can go ahead. Kill me in any old way you wish."

Mr. Bowser couldn't do it. He had not committed enough murders to burden his heart to that point. He gazed at the grinning figure for a long minute and then walked away. Behind him was Silver Beach. Behind him was the shimmering sea. Behind him was the ocean with its playing leapfrog along the beach, but he recked not. He had come out to find a bungalow and found only only a bung. When he reached home by way of a gravel train he was all-fired up for what Mrs. Bowser would be sure to say. And yet that good woman—that wife who knew her husband—secretly gave him a glance, but kindly said:

"Oh, Mr. Bowser, I'm so glad you're home early. I want you to take down and hang a couple of pictures for me."

Now wasn't that nice of her?

Thanks to Lucy.

Mark Smith, former delegate from Arkansas to congress and likely as not to be one of the new senators when the state is admitted, was born in Kentucky.

He says that in the town where he was born a new and youthful preacher was imported from New England to minister to the Presbyterian church.

On the first Sunday the senior deacon of the church took the minister aside and asked him to pray for Lucy Gray. The minister prayed fervently for Lucy, not only on that Sunday but on the two succeeding Sundays.

Up the fourth Sunday the deacon came around and said, "Parson, you needn't pray for Lucy Gray any more."

"Why," asked the minister, "is she dead?"

"Dead? No," said the deacon; "she won't."—New York Evening Post.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is today the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unsatisfactory looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by dealers everywhere.

LILLE NOTES

C. Faure, proprietor of the Lille wholesale wine store, paid a visit to Calgary last week.

Mrs. J. D. McDonald, who had been visiting friends in California, has returned home.

Rev. W. MacMorine and family of Coleman and Inspector Belcher were visitors here the past week.

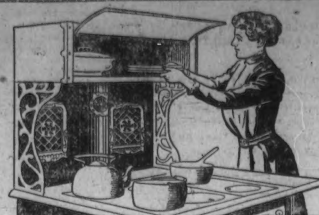

Miss Norton, teacher, has returned from her holiday, and the children are once more back to their desks.

Quite a number of men have arrived in Lille during the past two weeks, and the hotel is said to be quite full of boarders.

Miss Williams and Miss Mary Williams have left for Calgary to resume their studies, after a very enjoyable vacation at Lille.

Coroner Phipps attended the inquest held at Pincher Creek last week into the death of Michel Reardon. The jury returned the following verdict: "That deceased, Michel Reardon, came to his death by falling from a horse and being trampled on, and from the evidence it appeared he had been drinking."

"Can be depended upon" is an expression we all like to hear, and when it is used in connection with Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy it means that it never fails to cure diarrhoea, cholera, or any other complaint. It is pleasant to take and equally valuable for children and adults. Sold by dealers everywhere.
